Important Considerations For Plank Flooring Installation

Carefully planned delivery time combined with immediate installation is the absolute best way to ensure the flooring planks experience the least amount of movement due to moisture and other contributing conditions. Our flooring may be stored for a very short period before installation provided that it is stored in an environment where the humidity levels are very close to the actual living conditions that will be maintained in the home. Avoid storage in a garage, uncontrolled warehouse, trailer, new home without heat, or any other location where there might be high or variable humidity conditions. The material will absorb moisture if exposed to these conditions, causing possible warping, bowing, and/or cupping. The relative humidity of the installation area must also be checked and the area below the installation. Please call us regarding Installation Professionals that we recommend.
